

The #CarmenThyssen collection now the subject of the @guillermosolana art clases on Twitter

On 18 June at 8pm Guillermo Solana (@guillermosolana), the Museum's Artistic Director, will be starting a new art course on Twitter, this one focusing on the Carmen Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection, which can be followed on the hashtag #CarmenThyssen. This continuation follows on from the previous one, #Thyssen140.

For 12 working days at 8pm, until 2 July, @guillermosolana will comment on works in the collection of the Baroness through a series of tweets that include high-definition images of the paintings together with descriptions, information and comments. These sessions, lasting approximately 1 hour, will be re-tweeted from @museothyssen.org

This initiative will be launched the day before, on Monday 17 June, with the first participative interview with the Baroness via Twitter. From Friday 14 to Sunday 16, users can send their questions to @guillermosolana or @museothyssen, in both cases using the hashtag #CarmenThyssen. From 8pm on 17 June, the Baroness will reply to the questions from @guillermosolana.
